Presenter:

Heather McLaughlin was the first Australian to study at the Kodaly Institute in Kecskemet, Hungary, and followed this with an Orff course in Salzburg many years ago. She has special interests in baby and preschool music, family music making, and the use of instruments in the primary classroom and has taught at many workshops, conferences and courses around Australia and internationally. In recent times she taught in Japan for five years. She currently teaches music in Melbourne primary schools, and aims for a balance between social enjoyment and the development of children's skills.
